

PARSONS THE NEW SCHOOL FOR DESIGN
Bachelor of Fine Arts in Fashion Design

By the successful completion of this program, a student should be able to demonstrate:
1. Cultivate a personalized approach to research methods reflecting a wide range of methodologies;
2. Refine design ideas/solutions in both 2D and 3D processes that include (but are not limited to) hand drawing, digital design, prototype development utilizing draping and pattern drafting techniques, and the execution and resolution of fabricated garments;
3. Demonstrate the ability to confidently analyze and communicate fashion design concepts and processes
4. Communicate a finessed personal design philosophy. Demonstrating a more mature ability to self-select, reflect on individual choices and manage time effectively;
5. Design and present a portfolio of work which supports a senior thesis, demonstrating an ability to confidently and competently visualize ideas in 2D;
6. Contextualize an understanding of globalization's impact on the fashion industry, including an awareness of environmental sustainability and its social impact within the field of fashion design.