

Summer 2014

BERLIN'S MUSEUMS

the CULTURE & POLITICS of MEMORY

Nowhere is the role of museums more apparent than in Berlin, a city with more than 170 museums. Focusing on the history and contemporary practice of the museum, students will investigate the conditions under which these institutions were developed, their political and educational mandates, their relationship to the city's and nation's tourist industry, and the extent to which memory, trauma, and history are commodified through the museum and thereby, implicated in "dark tourism."

Applications due
February 20, 2014

EARN 6 CREDITS

May 31 - July 12, 2014

- Engage in fieldwork at more than a dozen of Berlin's museums
- Museum visits will include guest lectures and workshops by museum curators

for more information contact

Professor of Culture & Media
Kate Eichhorn: eichhorc@newschool.edu

Lang Study Abroad Advising langstudyabroad@newschool.edu